Why Firms Are Leaving TaxDome

TaxDome is a powerful platform — for the right firm. But for solo practitioners and boutique firms, the pricing model punishes you before you've onboarded a single client.

You Pay the Full Year Before You're Operational

TaxDome bills annually, upfront. You write a check for the entire year before you've confirmed the software works for your firm. Reviewers consistently describe 6-8 weeks of setup before being fully operational. You're paying for a tool you're not yet using.

Seasonal Staff Becomes a Year-Long Expense

Three seasonal preparers at $800/seat = $2,400 billed upfront in January. They leave in April. You pay through December. That's 8 months of seats for people who've moved on.

No AI Agents

TaxDome has no Scout (client-side AI that knows each client's specific checklist) and no Sage (practice intelligence that queries your entire portfolio). When your client asks what they still need to send at 10pm — they email you. When you need to know who's behind — you check manually.

6-8 Weeks to Get Operational

Setting up pipelines, automations, and workflows in TaxDome takes weeks. Ledger Stash is set up in under 5 minutes — no training videos, no onboarding calls, no configuration.

You're Paying for Features You Don't Use

TaxDome includes CRM, invoicing, payment processing, time tracking, and scheduling. Genuinely useful for larger firms. If you need document collection and engagement letters — you're paying for a practice management suite you use at 20% capacity.

The Real Cost Comparison

Scenario: Solo CPA, adds 3 seasonal staff January through April.
